DAVID GRAY began his musical career as an instrumentalist. He served as principal horn of the London Symphony Orchestra under conductors George Szell, Pierre Boulez, Sir Georg Solti, Erich Leinsdorf and most of the world's great conductors. A protégé of Jascha Horenstein, his first conducting experience was before the Birmingham Orchestra. He was also one of the first participants in the Conductors' Workshop, a program which continues at the Royal Conservatory of Music this year, its thirteenth season. He received a conducting fellowship at Tanglewood in 1972. Since his début conducting he has worked with the B.B.C. Northern Ireland Orchestra and the London Studio Strings for broadcast, as well as rehearsals with the Buffalo Philharmonic and Toronto Symphony Orchestras. He now serves as conductor and music director of the Newfoundland Symphony Orchestra and has been instrumental in raising its standard. This is his first appearance with the Orchestral Training Program and we welcome his virtuosity and musicianship.
